We Give Thanks - To You!

A beloved community treasure, Bainbridge Public Library is supported by generations of Islanders who value having such an important and wonderful resource close by.

Our heartfelt thanks to ALL our donors who made gifts in 2021 – whether in response to one of our fundraising letters or to appeals sent from One Call for All and Kitsap Great Give on our behalf. It takes a village to have our own island library! We are especially grateful to our newest legacy donors who have made provisions for estate gifts to benefit the library. Your support helps us maintain and operate our library home – a vibrant community space for all. Truly, we are the library that Bainbridge built! Thank you for your continued support and partnership in the year to come.

Art in the Library!

Happy New Year!

Celebrate the start of 2022 with art and First Friday Art Walk at your Bainbridge Public Library.

Our January artists, Philene Vaivods and Toni Foss, will host an opening reception on Friday, January 7, 5-7 pm for their exhibit titled "Playful Mixed Media and Watercolor Art by Two Bainbridge Island Friends."

ABOUT THE ARTIST... PHILENE VAIVODS

I have always enjoyed color, design, and creative art. As a child, I redecorated my bedroom and my dollhouses frequently. It was fun dressing my dolls and paper dolls. While in college, majoring in anthropology, I also took classes in design and art history. Those classes have influenced my works. My work also reflects my interest in science, architecture, fashion, and culture. In the past 15 years I have expanded to mixed media. I love to create while listening to classical music. It is interesting to see how shapes become art using varying materials, textures, and colors. The Bainbridge Island art workshops I have taken were extremely helpful for collage design and composition. I enjoy the art community here. It gives me pleasure to see people smile when they view my work. My goal is to create Happy Art!

ABOUT THE ARTIST... TONI FOSS

Toni is originally from South Pasadena, CA. She moved to Bainbridge from Gold Beach, OR. She enjoys watercolor painting, has a vivid imagination, and loves color, which are reflected in her paintings.

Birds Do It!

You can view this exhibit all of January during regular library hours and on the library website, bainbridgepubliclibrary.org.

Masks are currently required while visiting indoor public spaces. As always, thank you for supporting local artists and your Bainbridge Public Library.

(A portion of art sales are donated back to the library.)

What's Up with Facilities?

Happy New Year, Library fans!

We hope everyone managed to create pleasant memories over the holidays to carry with them into the new year and beyond. One thing that lifts my spirit at this time of year is celebrating the Winter Solstice! Though it takes a few weeks to become perceptible, I get a bouncier spring in my step knowing the daylight hours are getting a little longer each day 1!

The exciting news from the Facilities Team pertains to the Fern Garden gazebo. After carefully considering the proposals we received from numerous contractors, we are happy to announce the Board's decision to move forward with the repair and renovation project with Ponce Excavation Construction & Consulting (PECC). The project timeline is still under consideration, but it is fair to say we will have a renewed gazebo before the end of 2022! This project goes forward with a generous grant from the Bainbridge Community Foundation.

For those who are not familiar with the gazebo, here are some "Before" pictures:

From the Library Garden

Brrr! Will the BPL gardens survive the winter? It depends on the plants. What zone are they? We are Zone 8b but-it depends. Weather is so charismatic. It lures you into absolutes. Sometimes, the weather nosedives below our zones and we feel betrayed. Is that a death sentence for our tender, on the 'edge of the zone' plants? It depends. If the wintry weather is dry, without the benefit of snow, the plants can become desiccated, then it can be a death sentence. If we get the lovely deep snow that blankets the ground, plants can tolerate lower temperatures for a longer period. Like a nice down comforter. Well, that may be a bit of an exaggeration. I always hope for snow. I love the promise of snow. And if it gets down into the teen temperatures, it is best to be philosophical. If we lose a few plants, it is an opportunity to go shopping! To rummage through Bay Hay and Feed's and Bainbridge Gardens' treasures.

I am also reminded of other gardens that have faced debilitating temperatures. About thirty miles off the coast of Penzance are the Isles of Scilly. One of this group of islands is the home to Tresco Abbey Gardens. These islands are blessed with the modifying influence of the Gulf Stream. This allows plants that you usually only see on the slopes of volcanoes in Hawaii to survive in this extraordinary garden. This garden includes banksias, aeoniums, embothriums, echiums and proteas.

The head gardener Mike Nelhams at the Abbey told of two events in the 20th Century that destroyed the gardens. The temperatures there rarely get below 50 degrees. Storms tore through the island in 1929 and one recent event was in 1987 when freezing weather destroyed 80% of the garden followed by a hurricane in 1990, just as the new plantings began to mature. When asked how they were able to recover, he said they were gifted plants from all over the world. It is always good to have gardening friends but rebuilding a 17-acre garden is truly a wonder.

While I really hope our library gardens survive unscathed, it may benefit us to realize that gardens are about change, opportunity, and renewal. Let Mr. Nelhams give us the courage to rebuild, replant if necessary, and let us not be discouraged. ~Lynn McIntyre

Wendy Hinman

Bainbridge is home to many distinguished and hugely popular authors. In this new column, we will profile a local author each month. Many will already be favorites, but we may just introduce you to a new author whose profile will send you right to the library to pick up a new read! Happy reading and thank you to Delight Willing for her assistance! ~Susan Braun

Wendy Hinman is an adventurer, speaker, and the award-winning author of two books: Tightwads on the Loose and Sea Trials: Around the World with Duct Tape and Bailing Wire.

Tightwads on the Loose tells the story of her 34,000-mile voyage aboard a 31-foot sailboat with her husband. It has been called a "cult classic," admired for its unaffected style and refreshing humor, and named a Readers Favorite. Sea Trials details the harrowing round-the-world voyage of a family who must overcome a shipwreck, gun boats, mines, thieves, scurvy, and hunger to achieve their dream. It is a timeless story of grit and resilience. Sea Trials was named a Kirkus best book as well as a Foreword Review best book. As the Kirkus starred review describes, "her engaging narrative succeeds in capturing the thrills and frustrations of this intrepid family. Taking in remarkably far-flung destinations such as Christmas Island and the New Hebrides, this exhilarating book should appeal to any would-be explorer. Highly readable and sufficiently evocative to sense the scent of sea air in the pages." Read the full Kirkus review here: (https://www.kirkusreviews.com/book-reviews/wendy-hinman/sea-trials1/)

Hinman is a sought-after speaker who gives entertaining presentations throughout the country at libraries, community centers, and private clubs (as well as online). She writes articles for a variety of publications and reviews books for Foreword Reviews Magazine. She is currently at work on a historical novel. You can find her books at the library and at Eagle Harbor Book Company. For more information, please visit: www.wendyhinman.com.

Have You Seen This Library?

This is the fourth in a series of photo essays on the libraries of New York, collected by Kevin Manion, the new co-chair of the BPL CoFun Committee. We thank him for sharing his photography and fun facts about the many libraries of the great City of New York!

Chapter Four - The New York Society Library

The New York Society Library (NYSL) is the oldest cultural institution in New York City, founded in 1754 as a subscription library. During the time when New York was the capital of the United States, it was the de facto Library of Congress. Until the establishment of the New York Public Library in 1895, it functioned as the city's library as well. It has been patronized by a wide variety of literary and political figures, from George Washington to Wendy Wasserstein. Its special collections include books from the libraries of John Winthrop and Lorenzo Da Ponte. Since 1937, the library has been housed in the former John S. Rogers Mansion at 53 East 79th Street, the fifth location in its history. The library's collection of 300,000 volumes includes audio recordings and periodicals, as well as books on a broad range of subjects. It is open to the public for browsing and research but only members may borrow books or use the upper floors. The library is a non-profit organization supported primarily by its membership fees and endowment.

The Friends' room can be accessed from its outside entrance. Attendees will be allowed in as space allows and must be masked. The time per visit is thirty minutes. Books are plentiful and the sale is a wonderful way to give back to ... and support the library! Friends of the Library continue to welcome donations of books in clean, undamaged, re-saleable condition during library open hours. (Damaged books just get recycled....at our expense.) Smaller quantities may be deposited in bins behind the hold shelves on the main floor. Larger quantities should be left inside the Friends door adjacent to the children's library downstairs. Friends can assist if present and a hand truck is available. You can also request assistance at www.bifriends.org. Please do not leave donations outside, in the drop box or request staff to assist.

Books Worth Sharing!

The Writer's Library By Nancy Pearl and Jeff Schwager

In the foreword to this marvelous collection of interviews, Susan Orlean ponders a Senegalese saying that when someone dies, his or her library has burned. She muses that we are what we read and that what we glean from our lives with books becomes part of who we are for as long as we live. Librarian extraordinaire Nancy Pearl and journalist/playwright/editor Jeff Schwager have gathered interviews with twenty-three of America's most influential and widely read authors, asking them about the books that inspired them to pursue lives of writing. Not surprisingly, several of the authors were book children and have read voraciously all their lives. Many have librarians in their families. All eagerly shared their reading passions with Nancy and Jeff and provided reading lists! I love talking about books and the power of reading, and this eclectic insider's look into the reading lives of writers made me feel as though I were sitting right in the room as the interviews took place.
